

UNALLOCATED FUNDS – FEBRUARY 2016

The under listed employers remitted NSSF contributions for their employees to the Fund without the requisite documents and payment schedules to indicate who the money belongs to.

As is standard practice and in line with the provisions of the NSSF Act, specifically Section 36 (1) (b), the Fund placed these unallocated contributions on a temporary account, normally called a suspense account.

We call upon unregistered former employees of these employers who did not have NSSF numbers to register with the Fund so that their funds can be transferred to their individual NSSF accounts. Registration is free at any of our offices countrywide. You will be required to present evidence that you worked for any of the mentioned employers.

The Fund will thereafter conduct due diligence with the respective employers, and transfer the funds to the rightful individual account following approval of the Minister of Finance, Planning and Economic Development.

We would like to reaffirm to our members and the general public that the Fund has put in place a number of measures to ensure that we reduce the amount of unallocated funds and ultimately eliminate the suspense account.

These measures include aggressive engagement with employers, usage of an electronic collection systems and periodically publishing announcements in the media appealing to members to verify their accounts.
